

THOS. C. MERCER, JR., BURIED THURSDAY

Thomas C. Mercer, Jr., was buried in the city cemetery yesterday afternoon, following a beautiful funeral service, held at the Mercer home, 2334 Grant avenue. Long before the hour set for the service to begin, the home and surrounding premises were filled with friends of the family and present and past schoolmates of the dead youth, from the Weber academy and other schools of the city, who were joined in a bond of common sorrow over his demise. Floral offerings of many appropriate and beautiful designs filled the room in which the casket was set, telling of the place which the boy held in the hearts of his friends and associates.

The students of the Weber academy, which school "Tom" was his best known, attended up to the time of his last illness, the funeral, the funeral in a body and showed their further love and respect to the memory of the deceased by marching at the head of the funeral cortege to the city cemetery. Principal James L. Barker of the academy and Dr. Henry W. Nelson, who had known the dead boy since babyhood, were the speakers at the service, and in addition to scriptural sermons, in highly eulogistic terms of his life, saying that the best proof of his character and personality was the many friends he had made, all of whom would miss him greatly.

Music was furnished by students and faculty members of the Weber academy. A double quartette composed of Prof. W. H. Manning, Prof. H. A. Dixon, Benjamin Young, Wilford Moeck, Pauline Malan, Bertha Farley, Josephine Shorten and Margaret Johansen sang "My Father Knows" at the home, and "Jesus, Lover of My Soul," at the grave. Prof. Dixon sang the solo "O Dry Those Tears," and Prof. Manning "A Perfect Day," and together they sang the duet "Come Unto Me." Ten boy chorists acted as pallbearers and four as honorary pallbearers. Dr. Henry W. Nelson presided at the service and the grave in the city cemetery was dedicated by E. A. Larkin.

It's a great bill at the Alhambra-Orpheum this week. 10, 25 and 50 cents. See it.

CASUALTIES OF BRITISH ARMY

London, Oct. 29, 11:25 a. m.—British casualties from the beginning of the war to October 9 were 493,294.

British casualties up to August 21, as given officially on September 14, were 381,983. This shows a total between that time and October 9th, of 111,311 or a daily average of 2,271. Losses between June 9th and August 21st averaged about 1,500 daily.

The marked increase in the fall over the summer losses may be accounted for primarily by the heavy fighting on the western front at the time of the British and French offensive movement last month.
